'IKE' SEES HIM OFF President To Rest Before Addressing Conference In San Francisco

WASHINGTON, June 19—President Truman left today on a non-stop flight to the Pacific Coast—the first time a President ever has made an airplane trip in this country.

Mr. Truman's first destination was Olympia, Wash., some 2,450 miles away. There he will be the guest of Gov. Mon Wallgren, an old friend of senate days.

After a few days' relaxation there, the president will go to San Francisco to address the closing session of the United Nations conference. Shortly after that he plans to visit his home town in Independence, Mo., and Kansas City.

The presidential plane, a B-29 Superfortress, was escorted by a formation of 36 fighters. It took off at 8:21 a. m. EWT, exactly a minute it was out of sight in the overcast sky.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander of the Army transport command, took off at 8:21 a. m. EWT, exactly a minute it was out of sight in the overcast sky. Gen. Eisenhower, who is head of occupying forces in the American section of Germany and also U. S. representative on the Allied control council in Berlin, made his views clear yesterday following his triumphant return to America.

Officials At Airport A small group of officials bade Mr. Truman goodbye at the airport. Among them were Acting Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew and Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and Lt. Gen. Harold L. George, chief of the air transport command.

They and Eisenhower shook hands and chatted briefly with the President before he boarded the plane. "I didn't know you could get up this early, Ike," Mr. Truman joked.

"I had to," said Eisenhower, who had arrived at the airport about 10 minutes ahead of the President.

Two other C-54 transports preceded the presidential plane on the flight to Olympia. One bearing secret service men took off at 7:10. Another carrying newspapermen, photographers and a radio man left at 7:40.

GEN. Dwight D. Eisenhower, back in the United States to receive a grateful nation's thanks for a job well done, is shown as he was cheered by thousands of persons in Washington as he rode in a parade prior to addressing a joint session of congress.

'Ike' Would Punish Nazi Criminals; Says 'You Can't Build Peace With A Club'

WASHINGTON, June 19—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower wants to teach the German people that "crime doesn't pay." He wants to do it by punishing those responsible for war crimes, not the German people as a whole.

In measured words the five-star general sounded the theme of this country's participation in the military occupation of Germany. "You can't build peace on hate or with a club," he declared.

"You must find the war criminals and all must be punished. That's the only way I know to teach them that crime doesn't pay."

Eisenhower, who is head of occupying forces in the American section of Germany and also U. S. representative on the Allied control council in Berlin, made his views clear yesterday following his triumphant return to America. "Ike" grinned his way through a glorious day that included parades, a speech before congress and the supreme court, a mammoth civic luncheon, presentation by President Truman of a third distinguished service medal, a press conference, visits to general of the armies John J. Pershing and to wounded veterans at Walter Reed hospital and a White House buffet supper.

Presents SHAEF Flag His officers and men went with him to supper and ate turkey, sweet potatoes, ice cream and angel food cake in the dark paneled state dining room. Before eating Eisenhower presented President Truman with a flag bearing the blazing sword insignia of SHAEF—supreme headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force in Europe. (Continued on Page Two)

AWOL FROM NAZI ARMY, MAN WINS BRONZE STAR

MANILA, June 19—Paul Duber, who has been absent without leave from the German army for three years, was awarded the bronze star today for meritorious achievement with the 32nd division in northern Luzon.

Duber got a five year furlough from the German army in 1937 to visit the United States with his American wife. In 1942, he went AWOL and two years later he became an American citizen. Duber and his wife Tekla, now living in Bethlehem, Pa., worked for movie star Richard Dix until the former German soldier was drafted to be an American soldier.

He was awarded the bronze star for carrying two injured infantrymen on litters two miles to a battalion aid station through Japanese-held territory, dodging ambushes and heavy fire.

TRUMAN ASKS SUCCESSOR LAW

Congress Urged To Pass Bill Making Speaker Of House Successor

WASHINGTON, June 19—President Truman today asked congress to pass legislation making the speaker of the house first in line for the presidency in case of death or disqualification of the President and vice president.

The recommendation, made in a message to congress, would change the 69-year-old law under which Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., would advance to the presidency if President Truman were to die or leave office for some other reason.

The present statute, Mr. Truman told congress, gives him power "to nominate the person who would be my immediate successor in the event of my own death or inability to act."

"I do not believe that in a democracy this power should rest with the chief executive," he said. The change suggested by Mr. Truman would put Speaker Sam Rayburn, D. Tex., first in line for the presidency with Sen. Kenneth McKellar, D. Tenn. president pro tempore of the senate, second in line.

The order of succession after that "might pass to the members of the cabinet as now provided." The same would apply if there were neither a speaker or senate president qualified to succeed.

PRIME MINISTER LOSES HIS SEAT IN PARLIAMENT

OTTAWA, June 19—Prime Minister MacKenzie King lost his parliamentary seat today after the final tabulation of the soldier vote in the recent Canadian elections.

Chief electoral officer Jules Castonguay said King lost his seat to Liberal Jean Richard, who would step aside.

They said that the soldier vote made no other changes in the overall results of the national election last June 11.

MOSCOW, June 19—A regional commander of the Polish home army testified at the terrorist trial of 16 of its members today that he received orders from the Polish government in London to prepare diversionary acts against the Red army.

LONDON, June 19—Radio Moscow said a member of the Polish underground testified at the terrorist trial today that the main task of the organization was to prepare to fight Russia.

The witness, identified only as Zelinski, former underground commandant in the Wilno area, was called to the stand as the trial of 16 Polish leaders on charges of terrorist attacks on the Red army entered its second day in Moscow.

Fifteen of the 16 defendants already have pleaded guilty to some or all of the charges. They included Gen. Leopold Okulicki, commander of the underground Polish home army, and Jan Jankowski, vice premier of the Polish exile government in London and head of the former underground cabinet in Warsaw.

Zelinski said the Polish underground government in Warsaw on Feb. 19, 1944 issued instructions indicating that the general line of the whole Polish underground was to prepare for armed struggle against the Soviet Union, radio Moscow reported.

"By all means, we encouraged and enflamed hate toward USSR," the witness said.

He said he was responsible directly to the delegate of Polish underground in Wilno, a man named Siedorowicz, who in turn was in contact with Warsaw.

Radio Moscow reported that the Soviet prosecutor turned to Jankowski in the prisoners' dock and asked him to confirm that Siedorowicz and Zelinski were acting on his instructions.

"Jankowski was unable to deny the fact that the whole activity of the Polish underground was directed against the Soviet Union," the Soviet broadcast said. Zelinski also was said to have testified that he was instructed by the underground to build relations with Soviet authorities and (Continued on Page Two)

LEOPOLD SAYS HE WILL RETURN AS BELGIAN KING

SALZBURG, AUSTRIA, June 19—King Leopold of the Belgians today rejected clamorous demands that he abdicate and announced that he was resuming his full constitutional prerogatives.

"There is no question of my majesty abdicating," said a statement authorized by Leopold and issued to the Allied press by one of his aides, Capt. Gatten Viscount du Parc.

The king has decided to return to Belgium and again take over the throne after five years in German hands and a few weeks as a guest of the American army since his liberation by the 106th cavalry group of the 15th corps, U. S. Seventh army.

The announcement of Leopold's decision came three days after the Belgian government of Premier Achille von Acker resigned in protest against his return. In resigning Saturday the government said it was unwilling to take responsibility for events which it regarded as inevitable if the king went home to rule the country.

Buckner Killed, Geiger Takes Over

Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr., was killed by an enemy shell burst while observing fighting at the front lines. Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger, commanding general of the Third Amphibious Corps, has taken over command of all Okinawa ground forces. Buckner is at the left above.

Lt. Gen. Buckner Buried Among Men He Fought With On Bloody Okinawa

OKINAWA, June 19—Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr., was buried with full military honors today only 20 miles from where the troops he commanded fought to final victory.

Buckner, killed yesterday by a Japanese shell while he was up front, was laid to rest in the 7th Infantry Division cemetery.

At 9 a. m. they lowered his body into the ground, alongside the other men who have died in this bloody campaign. A bugler sounded "taps" and the melancholy notes floated across nearby Hagushi beach, where Buckner led his men ashore on Easter Sunday.

Today those men had victory at their fingertips. But Buckner, whose great wish was to walk "through the ashes of Tokyo," didn't live to see it. Their new commander was Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger of the Marines, the man Buckner wanted to take over if anything happened to him.

The general went to the front yesterday to watch the final stages of the battle he had predicted would be over in another four days. He was at a forward observation post of the eighth Marine regiment.

A Marine combat photographer—Staff Sgt. Martin Conn, West Long Branch, N. J.—had just taken motion pictures of the general and his party. It had been a quiet morning—hardly a Japanese shot fired. Buckner, big and silver-haired, sat on a rock chatting. . .

GERMAN STATES INDUSTRIALISTS HELD UP JETS

BERCHTESGADEN, June 19—A German source said today that powerful German industrialists sabotaged production of the Messerschmitt 264 jet bomber so they could exploit the plane after the war.

The informant was Fritz Goernert, who had charge of Reichsmarine Hermann Goering's special train and thus was able to pick up considerable information about aircraft production. He said that government scientists had developed the long-range, jet-propelled bomber to a point where it was ready to go into production.

"But a powerful clique prevented that," Goernert said. "They gave all sorts of excuses including the lack of raw materials. Their real reason however was to prevent any company or combine from getting a headstart in the production of turbo-jet planes, thus achieving a monopoly for the postwar period."

"They realized Germany already had lost the war and that the new bomber couldn't bring victory. Their only interest therefore was to have research continue but to delay actual production for after the war."

Goernert said the industrialists who sabotaged production of the plane were headed by a member of the Krupp family, a man named Roeschling and a tycoon named Roland and the Vereinigte Stahlwerke steel works.

Lt. Gen. Styer To Head New Pacific Command To Keep Supplies Moving Up

Japs Flee Toward Sea With Only About 1 1/2 Miles Of Territory Left

WASHINGTON, June 19—American submarines have sunk two light combatant ships and nine other Japanese vessels in far eastern waters, the Navy announced today.

By United Press

Victory on Okinawa was imminent today, and preparations were underway for the next big campaign—perhaps the invasion of Japan itself.

Even while the 10th army mourned its commander, Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr., it was plowing across the last mile and a half to two miles held by the enemy. Japanese soldiers fled toward the sea, presumably to throw themselves into it.

To create the vast supply organization needed for an ambitious assault such as the invasion of Japan, Gen. Douglas MacArthur set up a new Pacific command under Lt. Gen. Wilhelm D. Styer. It will be called the armed forces of the western Pacific, and Styer's job will be to handle the huge numbers of men and munitions for coming operations.

From MacArthur's headquarters today came more reports of continued success against Japanese forces in Borneo and the Philippines.

Make New Landing

The Australians made a new landing on the east shore of Brunel Bay at Weston and drove inland toward the rubber town of Tutong. The oil refinery town of Tutong was captured on Brunel peninsula, and Allied planes already were operating on Labuan island.

In northern Luzon, the 37th division continued its swift advance in the Cagayan valley and neared the town of Naguilian. The air force couldn't supply maps fast enough for the 37th, who drove ahead against virtually no opposition.

Heavy bombers again battered Formosa after a break in the weather. They dropped 340 tons of explosives on Keelung, Takao and Taito, starting big fires.

GEIGER STARTED AS A PRIVATE

60-Year-Old Marine Corps General Won Wings At Pensacola In 1917

GUAM, June 19—Maj. Gen. Roy Stanley Geiger, U. S. Marine Corps, a much-decorated 60-year-old pioneer of military aviation and an infantryman, is the new U. S. commander of the Ryukyus forces, replacing the late Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr.

Geiger was the fifth member of the Marine corps to win his wings, getting them at Pensacola in 1917. He commanded the 1st Marine aircraft wing at Guadalcanal during the critical months of that campaign.

Later he went to Washington as director of Marine corps aviation and in November, 1943, he returned to the Pacific to assume command of the 1st Marine amphibious corps, succeeding Lt. Gen. Alexander A. Vandergrift, now a full general.

Geiger was in command of the Bougainville operations and commanded the 3rd amphibious corps at Guam, Peleliu and Okinawa. He enlisted as a private in 1907 and was commissioned a second lieutenant two years later. He climbed steadily through the ranks to become a major general in August, (Continued on Page Two)

U. S., CHINESE DENY REPORTS OF DISSENSION

CHUNGKING, June 19—Reports of dissension between the American military and diplomatic missions in China were denied today in a joint statement by U. S. Ambassador Patrick J. Hurley and Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, U. S. Army commander in China.

The statement acknowledged there had been "differences of opinion" between the top military and diplomatic officials and their staffs, but insisted these always had been settled "promptly and amicably."

"The diplomatic and military representatives of the United States in China are working harmoniously and will continue to do so," the statement said.

CROP DAMAGE HEAVY AS RIVER CONTINUES RISE

More crop damage threatened Pickaway county farmers as the Scioto river continued to rise Tuesday. The river rose almost 2 1/2 feet in twenty-four hour period from 7 a. m. Monday to 7 a. m. Tuesday. The Circleville weather observation station expects that it will reach a crest of 17 feet before Wednesday morning. At 7 a. m. Tuesday the river had reached a mark of 15.40 feet.

With slight rainfall Monday the river stage was not expected to go above the 17 foot stage. There were no rain predictions for Pickaway county Tuesday or Wednesday night. The sky is expected to remain cloudy with moderate temperatures.

Flooded bottom lands and fields covered by water from an intermittent five day rainfall threatened to do an inestimable damage to crops. The amount of the damage was not known because considerable of the damage would be ascribed by the duration of the flood.

The most drastic situation was caused to the pea crop and the canneries who had planned on a full week running on early June peas. The pea crop has been late because of the cold and rainy weather this spring.

High temperature Monday was 71 degrees. At 7 a. m. temperatures had fallen to 57 degrees. Temperature for June 12, 1944 was recorded at 97 degrees.

PRIME MINISTER LOSES HIS SEAT IN PARLIAMENT

OTTAWA, June 19—Prime Minister MacKenzie King lost his parliamentary seat today after the final tabulation of the soldier vote in the recent Canadian elections.
Chief electoral officer Jules Castonguay said King lost his Prince Albert riding to E. L. Bow-erman, progressive conservative candidate, by 129 votes.
Leaders of King's liberal party, said he would probably run again for the east Ottawa seat won by Liberal Jean Richard, who would step aside.
They said that the soldier vote made no other changes in the overall results of the national election last June 11.

From MacArthur's headquarters today came more reports of continued success against Japanese forces in Borneo and the Philippines.

Make New Landing

The Australians made a new landing on the east shore of Brunel Bay at Weston and drove inland toward the rubber town of Beaufort. Opposition was weak. The oil refinery town of Tutong was captured on Brunel peninsula, and Allied planes already were operating on Labuan airfield.

In northern Luzon, the 37th division continued its swift advance in the Cagayan valley and neared the town of Naguilian. The air force couldn't supply maps fast enough for the 37th, who drove ahead against virtually no opposition.

Heavy bombers again battered Formosa after a break in the weather. They dropped 340 tons of explosives on Keelung, Takao and Taito, starting big fires.

CROP DAMAGE HEAVY AS RIVER CONTINUES RISE

More crop damage threatened Pickaway county farmers as the Scioto river continued to rise Tuesday. The river rose almost 2 1/2 feet in twenty-four hour period from 7 a. m. Monday to 7 a. m. Tuesday. The Circleville weather observation station expects that it will reach a crest of 17 feet before Wednesday morning. At 7 a. m. Tuesday the river had reached a mark of 15.40 feet.

With slight rainfall Monday the river stage was not expected to go above the 17 foot stage. There were no rain predictions for Pickaway county Tuesday or Tuesday night. The sky is expected to remain cloudy with moderate temperatures.

Flooded bottom lands and fields covered by water from an intermittent five day rainfall threatened to do an inestimable damage to crops. The amount of the damage was not known because considerable of the damage would be affected by the duration of the flood.

The most drastic situation was caused to the pea crop and the canneries who had planned on a full week running on early June peas. The pea crop has been late because of the cold and rainy weather this Spring.

High temperature Monday was 71 degrees. At 7 a. m. temperatures had fallen to 57 degrees. Temperature for June 13, 1944 was recorded at 27 degrees.

operating in the Japan sea, between Japan and Korea.

The Japanese radio also put out several denials that Japan wants peace, particularly at the price of unconditional surrender. A spokesman for the Japanese board of information denied that peace feelers have been put out through neutral sources in Stockholm.

Another spokesman, Dr. Kosaku Tamura, said the Japanese never would surrender unconditionally. He foresaw the end of the Pacific war this way:

"The Japanese-American war can only be terminated through the ghastly landing operation of the American forces on the home-land of Japan, where they will bury mountains and rivers of Japan with their dead bodies and paint the beaches of Japan crimson with their own blood."

Expect Landing Soon

Tamura said the landing in Japan would be made "within a few months."

The Japanese jitters increased as they saw the day at hand when American forces could concentrate almost without interference on building Okinawa into an invasion and aerial base.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, in a statement on the death of Buckner, said that the victory was "imminent." Tactical command of the forces on the island was taken over by Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger, of the Marines. A new 10th army commander, an Army man, was to be named later.

The Japanese defense line finally collapsed yesterday after five divisions moved forward in a frontal assault. Marine observers saw upwards of 1,000 Japanese troops as well as numerous civilians fleeing cross-country toward the sea. It looked as if the campaign might end in an orgy of mass suicides as on Saipan.

At least 103 enemy soldiers and over 500 civilians thought better of jumping into the sea and surrendered to the 7th division.

MISSIONARY TO BE SPEAKER AT LOCAL CHURCH

The Rev. Ernest Wampler, returned missionary from China, will speak in the Church of the Brethren on South Pickaway street Wednesday at 8 p. m. He will be assisted by Mrs. Wampler.

The Rev. Lester E. Pike, pastor of the church, announced the meeting would be an unusual opportunity for the people of Circleville to get first-hand information on conditions in China. The pastor invited the public to hear the missionaries.

The Rev. Mr. Wampler, missionary of twenty-five years' experience, left his family in 1941 and went to Chungking, China, via the Burma Road. He escaped the fire of the enemy and arrived shortly before the road was closed.

For two years the Rev. Mr. Wampler not only administered relief funds as provided by the Church of the Brethren but also supervised the distribution of funds of thousands of dollars supplied through the United China Relief organization.

The first-hand contact with famine work enables the Rev. Mr. Wampler to give a graphic story of need in China and the use of money which American citizens have contributed.

All of the salary that U. S. Sen. E. V. Robertson, R., Wyo., makes as a Congressman goes for the purchase of War Bonds, according to Wyoming war loan chairman.

Sleepy Citizen Mourns Lack of A. M.'s Ting-a-Ling

By K. F. HEWINS

Central Press Correspondent

EVERY ONCE in a while there is an entre on the radio asking a question which I feel obliged to answer. The question is sung something like this:

"When you hear that alarm clock ring, do you have zip, do you have zing?"

Actually, I do not even have an alarm clock, let alone zip and zing.

It was the war that brought this alarming situation to our household; and if I am any judge of the cause of that pre-breakfast puff that I see around the eyes of some of my acquaintances scurrying off to work of a morning, I imagine others are deprived of the services of a mechanical bugle, too.

To tell the truth, I am reasonably sure that I would lie in bed until noon and be a total loss to civilization nowadays if I had not married a girl with some "get-up" about her.

My Lillian is not one to let a sleeping husband lie. In all the months that we have been without an alarm clock, she hasn't failed yet to get all of us up and away on time.

I do not know how she does it. I think she sort of sleeps by ear.

When people get old, I have observed, they can get up in the middle of the night to start a new day; and they seem to get a kick out of it. In fact, that is one of the blessings of older age that I am looking forward to with some pleasure.

Meanwhile, however, this eye-opener that I am married to is not old. She is not as old as I am, even—and I still like to think of my status as being "where manhood's morning almost touches noon," as Robert G. Ingersoll is quoted as saying at the grave of his brother, Eben.

I am rather grateful to the Missus for the discourtesy of getting me up of a morning. But I believe it would be much better for her if we had an alarm clock.

There is a glimmer of hope in the offing, incidentally, for the papers say that the WPB is going to let the clock makers start manufacturing again, if they can find anything to manufacture with.

We used to have as many as three alarm clocks in action around our house, as I recall it. But they all took time out somewhat together, soon after the present war began.

I remember that I went to every drugstore in town, trying to find an alarm clock. Everywhere I went I got the war horse-laugh—if I have the hyphen in the right place. In other words, they did not have any clocks.

Time marched on, anyhow, and eventually a clerk in a store amazed me with a telephone call. She asked whether I still wanted an alarm clock, and I said I did.

"Well, we have just got in two alarm clocks," she said, "and I'll save one for you."

So I hurried down to the store, feeling as much like a privileged character as a "C" sticker man driving to his Victory garden, if you get what I mean.

When I got home with the clock, I noticed wording on the end of the box reading:

"One Day Alarm Clock."

That was a little discouraging, even for $1.65. But I was destined to be disillusioned about the possibilities of this alarm clock, for it gave us a rousing cheer, not for one day but for several weeks.

This clock was built mostly of cardboard finish, however, and one day it ticked its last tick. It could not be repaired, I heard all around town. There were no other clocks to be had.

As I say, I would be glad to buy an alarm clock for my wife's sake.

I know, though, that alarm clocks never played a very important role in the early lives of some people. Take my Uncle Ed, for instance. He never had an alarm clock about the place all the time he lived on the farm. Yet, he could wake up automatically.

Uncle Ed and Aunt Lana slept downstairs. My cousins, Earl and Arthur, slept upstairs. When Uncle Ed woke up, he would whip out his right foot and bang his heel on the floor.

The resounding thud was picked up by Earl and Arthur upstairs. Either Earl or Arthur would answer by beating his heel on the floor. Thus, that particular household saw the dawn of another day.

There are other ways of being aroused, of course. Where I live, we have a species of the human race known as pea peddlers. These fellows, in season, pick a few pecks of peas at the twilight's last gleaming. Then they take a little nap, get up by some means, and head for town. Armed with a rock, they knock on the doors of the town to see whether the inhabitants want any peas today.

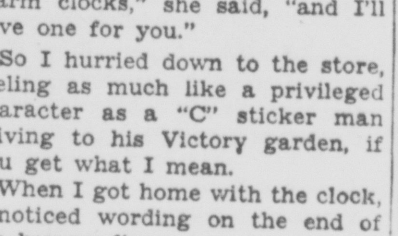

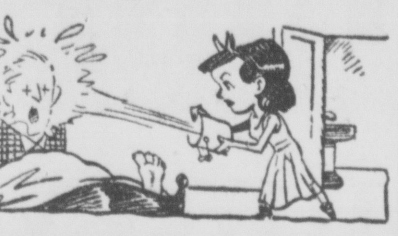

That will get you up, all right. But it is not the pleasant way to start your day, unless you are a pea soup addict.

Factory whistles in the community are fairly good makeshifts for alarm clocks, too. Too often, however, you cannot tell by the tone of the whistle whether it is 5 a. m. or 5 p. m.

Common, ordinary alley cats also have been known to make me sit up and stare out of the window early in the morning like a dying calf in a thunder storm. But cats are unreliable at their worst.

You cannot beat a first-class, genuine alarm clock for an early riser. That is what those things used to be made for.

WITNESS SAYS POLES PREPARED TO FIGHT REDS

Radio Moscow Reports Main Task Of Organization Was War Planning

The Red army command "diplomatically."

"This means," he said, "that our true feeling toward the Soviet troops was hostile and it was in this direction that all our work was organized, but on the surface we had to give the impression of being friendly to the Soviet Union."

Four other witnesses testified before the trial recessed for lunch.

Testimony by the defendants themselves last evening indicated they transmitted false information by radio to the London exile government in order to mislead Britain as to the real situation in Poland, then played on the theme of a British-led anti-Soviet coalition in Poland to rally Poles.

Most of the defendants appeared to be attempting to throw major responsibility for the terrorist attacks on the Red army and other underground activity on Okulicki.

At one point, Okulicki cross-questioned Jankowski on damaging accusations made by the latter.

The London government announced the dissolution of the underground Polish home army headed by Okulicki last year, but actually the army was maintained to harass and fight the Red army, witnesses testified.

MEMORIAL HELD BY PHILOS LODGE AND AUXILIARY

Annual memorial services were held for the deceased members of the Philos lodge No. 64, Knights of Pythias and the deceased members of the Majors Temple No. 516 Pythian Sisters in the Castle hall Monday evening. Turney M. Glick presided over the ceremonies.

The Rev. Charles L. Thomas presented the memorial address. Charles B. Stoffer laid the wreath and flowers on the altar as the names of the 183 deceased knights were read by Mr. Glick.

Following a reading by Miss Ethel Stein the names of the 12 deceased Pythian Sisters were read by Miss Nellie Bolender. Flowers were laid upon the altar in memory of the deceased sisters by Mrs. Ann Lape.

Music was furnished for the services by Dorothy Glick, piano solo; Dale DeLong, trombone solo; and vocal trio, Ralph DeLong, Sylvia Leist and Leona DeLong. Mr. S. L. Warner gave the closing invocation.

Refreshments were served to the membership by the committee for the meeting, R. S. Denman, Charles B. Stoffer and T. M. Glick.

LOCAL HORSES WIN AT CHILLICOTHE HORSE SHOW

Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Adkins, Circleville and Dr. J. P. Gardner, Kingston, were among the winners in the Chillicothe horse show presented Saturday and Sunday at the Mt. Logan school in Chillicothe.

San Marquita, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Adkins won in the fine harness stake and St. Patrick's Allen owned by Dr. Gardner, won in the Tennessee walking horses class and the Tennessee walking horses stake.

shell came screaming in, and then another. The first bounced off a rock, splattering murderous splinters through the air. One of those—a big one—hit Buckner in the chest. That was at 1:15 p. m.

Col. Clarence B. Wallace, Arlington, Va., commander of the eighth regiment, and his operations officer, Maj. William Chamberlain, Chicago, Ill., got Buckner's body down from the rock.

But the Japanese shells kept pouring in so Wallace and Chamberlain had to carry the general a distance to the rear. They put him behind the shelter of a cliff, while the cry "corpsmen" went up. Someone fetched Lt. (JG) Fred C. Wallace, a Navy medical officer from Oakland, Mass.

Wallace quickly injected blood plasma into the dying general. He worked frantically. But it was too late. At 1:25 p. m.—10 minutes after he had been hit—Buckner was pronounced dead.

First Killed in Action

Thus, just a month before his 59th birthday, Buckner became the first American army commander to die in action. He was the second three-star general killed in action. Lt. Gen. Leslie J. McNair was killed on the Normandy front.

Lt. Gen. Millard F. Harmon was reported missing on an inspection flight.

The bloody fighting continued today while Buckner was buried. The Japanese were on the run, and at the front the Marines and doughfaces didn't have time for much beyond a quickly muttered "did ya hear about the old man?"

Farther back, in headquarters, supply dumps, rest areas they swapped stories about him today—like about the time he arrived on the tiny Alaskan island base of Unimak. They gave Buckner an orderly there, a little southern private called "Po' Dawg."

The general looked him over, and asked what he had done in civilian life.

"I was the best hog-caller in our county, suh," said Po' Dawg.

"I'm pretty good myself," said Buckner. "Do your stuff, Po' Dawg."

So Buckner and Po' Dawg made their best and loudest calls ring up and down the bleak Aleutian hillsides. And nothing could have been better for the morale of the little garrison there, a handful of lonely men who expected a Japanese invasion any day.

Here in Alaska

And those who knew him in Alaska told about how the "old man" would get up in the morning, go to a creek near his tent, crack the ice, and draw himself a bucketful of water.

The G. I.'s would climb out of their bedding rolls, cold and angry with the Army. But they could always look across and see Buckner, stripped to the waist, standing in front of his tent shaving with the icy water. They weren't quite so angry after that.

That is the kind of a general Buckner was, himself the son of a general in the Confederate army. His father also was editor of the Louisville Courier and governor of Kentucky from 1887 to 1891. In the Buckner family they admired Simon Bolivar, the George Washington of South America, hence the name.

Attended VMI, West Point

Young Buckner followed the southern military tradition and went to Virginia Military Institute for two years before going to West Point, where he was graduated in 1908. During the first World war he applied for aviation duty, only to be told by an examining board that his eyes were not good enough.

"Gentlemen," roared Buckner, "I have been flying for two years."

He was assigned to the aviation section of the signal corps. Buckner was married in 1916 to the former Adele Blanc, an artist and photographer. They had three children—Lt. Simon Bolivar Buckner III, now in the signal corps; Mary, 18, a former student at the University of Alaska; and William Claiborne, 16, preparing for West Point at the San Rafael military academy.

In 1940 Buckner was sent to Alaska as a major-general to fortify and garrison the Alaska defense command. With little to build on, he did what was considered a 10-year job in 18 months.

Once a Japanese fleet headed toward Dutch Harbor, only to find itself attacked from behind by land-based planes. Just how Buckner accomplished that trick still can't be revealed in detail, but even before Pearl Harbor he had spotted that one coming and arranged a secret base.

Buckner's whereabouts in the Pacific were not disclosed until he landed on Okinawa as 10th army commander. The way he conducted the campaign drew fire from arm-chair strategists back home, who thought there should be a landing in the south behind the Japanese lines.

Praised By Nimitz

At a press conference several days ago Buckner explained that such a landing would have been as bad, or worse, than the Anzio beachhead, one of the worst there ever was.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz also answered the home-front critics of Buckner by sending him the message:

"To you and your fine corps and division commanders, 'well done.'"

Mr. Truman was scheduled to land about 7 p. m. EWT at McCord Field, an Army air installation about 22 miles from Olympia, and drive immediately to the executive mansion in Olympia.

The program at Olympia was kept relatively simple at the President's request because he wants to relax from the terrific press of business which had borne upon him since he took office in April. He was expected to make a few brief side trips in the vicinity of Olympia, and probably a short fishing trip in Puget Sound.

Scheduled June 23

The present date for his appearance before the United Nations conference is June 23, but this is not definite. The President will fly from Olympia to San Francisco the day before he addresses the conference. He will leave shortly after his speech for the East.

Original plans provided for his return to the nation's capital before going to Independence and Kansas City for homecoming celebrations. If he has to remain on the West Coast longer than next Sunday, however, he was expected to fly direct to Independence from San Francisco.

It became increasingly doubtful that he would be able to attend the governors' conference at Mackinac Island, Mich., on July 3.

The presidential plane was piloted by Lt. Col. Henry T. Myers, an airline veteran before he joined the armed services. He has piloted the special plane for three years.

The plane can be distinguished by the flags of more than 40 nations painted on the left side of the pilot's cabin. It is the latest in air travel luxury. The President has a special stateroom complete with bed, large work table, comfortable overstuffed chairs and a bathroom. The plane also has a kitchen.

Riding with the President were Charles G. Ross, press secretary; Matthew Connelly, secretary; Leonard Reinsch, special radio adviser; Col. Harry Vaughn, military aide; George Drescher, chief of the White House secret service detail; and Jack Romagna, White House stenographer.

DRIVER ESCAPES IN WHEN TRAIN HITS TRUCK

An N. and W. train struck the last of two new trucks being transported through Circleville on U. S. Route 23 at 4:15 a. m. Tuesday, Leslie Wilson, 42, Norwood, Ohio, the driver of the first truck, which was pulling the second by means of a towing bar, was not sure what had happened, according to the police report.

Wilson, the police said, told them he suddenly heard a whistle and bells and then the train struck the rear truck. Police said that he had probably been dozing and did not notice the blinker lights at the railway crossing.

There was very little damage caused to the rear truck. The tail gate and the pick-up body of the truck was damaged. Wilson was not injured.

TWO TRUCKS DAMAGED IN COURT STREET CRASH

Two trucks collided on Court near High street Monday afternoon. George L. Crites, 42, South Court street, and J. W. Jeagers, 19, Columbus drivers of the two trucks, were not injured.

The Jeagers truck, the police reported, hooked the rear of the Crites truck when it was passing it on Court street. The stake body of the Crites' truck was only slightly damaged.

TRUMAN ASKS SUCCESSOR LAW

has been formulated on Capitol Hill.

The President expressed belief that "no matter who succeeds to the presidency after the death of the elected president and vice president . . . he should not serve any longer than until the next congressional election or until a special election called for the purpose of electing a new president and vice president."

This period should be fixed by the congress, he said.

Mr. Truman said that "insofar as possible, the office of the president should be filled by an elective officer."

"There is no officer in our system of government, besides the president and vice president," he added, "who has been elected by all the voters of the country."

ASHVILLE MAN IS WOUNDED IN ACTION ON SHIP

Soundman 3/c Charles R. Flowers, 31, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Flowers, Asheville, was wounded in action April 12 while serving aboard a destroyer in the Asiatic theatre, his parents have been informed. He is being hospitalized in the Marianas.

Entering the service in September, 1943, he had been overseas since last November.

A brother, S/Sgt. Norman Flowers, 24, was wounded in action over Germany and is being hospitalized at Kelly Field, Texas. Another brother, Pvt. Walter E. Flowers, is stationed at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Maryland.

The three brothers formerly attended the Asheville schools.

CONTRACTORS ON STAND IN WATER TRIAL TUESDAY

R. H. Smith and Boyd Stout, Circleville contractors, gave contracting costs testimony for the City of Circleville in the city's appropriation suit against the Ohio Water Service company Tuesday.

Talmer Wise, Circleville fire chief, concluded his testimony Monday afternoon. Mr. Wise was asked to report on the adequacy of the water pressure in the city in relation to the use of the fire fighting equipment.

Clarence Helvering, city service director, was also called to the stand Monday to testify as to labor costs for the Circleville area.

Tucker Wardell and George Fissell were scheduled to give testimony for the city Tuesday afternoon.

THE TWO U. S. ARMIES WILL OCCUPY

respective areas in the American areas of Germany. U. S. Army headquarters will remain in Frankfurt-on-Main.

A U. S. force equivalent to about a division will be assigned to Berlin, to be jointly occupied by the Allies. There a sector will be allocated to the use of the Americans.

SHAER will be abolished when the Anglo-American combined chiefs of staff decide.

Eisenhower said accredited correspondents would be permitted in any area he controlled. He declined to add that this would apply to all of Berlin when he takes his turn as head of the Allied council, saying the question had not been raised before.

Various matters of administration will be coordinated between the respective occupied areas of Germany, Eisenhower said, mentioning communications, transportation, health and sanitation. He left the impression that such questions have not been fully worked out, with the British and Russians, as reports from Europe have indicated.

It was at the press conference that General Ike outlined his views on punishing German criminals but educating the remainder of Germans to a belief that aggression and brutality must not get by in a civilized world.

As for punishment, Eisenhower said the German general staff which has planned wars since 1806 must be destroyed. Members must be segregated so they cannot pass on their doctrines. Their records must be destroyed.

He said 15,000 German war criminals had already been segregated and there would be others. He said members of the storm troops who were enrolled up to September, 1944, should be considered war criminals or at least that the burden of proving they were not should be on them. After that date Hitler field SS ranks where he could.

Indicating that non-fraternization was not intended to show any basic unfriendliness toward the German people as such, he said it must continue to be applied to adults until all war criminals and adult Nazis are segregated and punished. Fraternization is now permitted with small children.

As for the bulk of Germans with which America has to deal, General Ike emphasized that education to a new outlook would be the main emphasis.

He said there was some evidence that the existence of atrocity camps and their practices was not widely known to Germans, but that investigations were still being held. He added that protests by high ranking officials that they had no knowledge of atrocities were not convincing.

Eisenhower also gave Americans a clearer picture than they have had to date of the U. S. Army's postwar setup in Europe. This is the outlook:

The occupation forces in Germany will be the 3rd army under Gen. George S. Patton and the 7th army under Lt. Gen. Wade H. Haislip.

The 1st army under Gen. Courtney H. Hodges is now being redeployed to the Pacific. The 9th army under Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson and the 15th army under Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow are ultimately leaving Europe. Eisenhower gave no indications whether they would be repatriated permanently or redeployed to the Pacific.

The army group commands in Europe will ultimately be abolished. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, now commanding both the 6th and 12th army groups and acting commander of U. S. forces there, will come home June 22 or 23 to be replaced temporarily by Gen. Omar N. Bradley. After Eisenhower returns Bradley will come home to head the veterans administration.

The two U. S. armies will occupy

Milwaukee, a little south of Minneapolis, then over Billings, Mont., just south of Great Falls, Mont., and over Spokane, Wash.

Mr. Truman was scheduled to land about 7 p. m. EWT at McCord Field, an Army air installation about 22 miles from Olympia, and drive immediately to the executive mansion in Olympia.

The program at Olympia was kept relatively simple at the President's request because he wants to relax from the terrific press of business which had borne upon him since he took office in April. He was expected to make a few brief side trips in the vicinity of Olympia, and probably a short fishing trip in Puget Sound.

Scheduled June 23

The present date for his appearance before the United Nations conference is June 23, but this is not definite. The President will fly from Olympia to San Francisco the day before he addresses the conference. He will leave shortly after his speech for the East.

Original plans provided for his return to the nation's capital before going to Independence and Kansas City for homecoming celebrations. If he has to remain on the West Coast longer than next Sunday, however, he was expected to fly direct to Independence from San Francisco.

It became increasingly doubtful that he would be able to attend the governors' conference at Mackinac Island, Mich., on July 3.

The presidential plane was piloted by Lt. Col. Henry T. Myers, an airline veteran before he joined the armed services. He has piloted the special plane for three years.

The plane can be distinguished by the flags of more than 40 nations painted on the left side of the pilot's cabin. It is the latest air travel luxury. The President has a special stateroom complete with bed, large work table, comfortable overstuffed chairs and a bathroom. The plane also has a kitchen.

Riding with the President were Charles G. Ross, press secretary; Matthew Connelly, secretary; Leonard Reinach, special radio adviser; Col. Harry Vaughn, military aide; George Drescher, chief of the White House secret service detail; and Jack Romagna, White House stenographer.

MEMORIAL HELD BY PHILOS LODGE AND AUXILIARY

Annual memorial services were held for the deceased members of the Philos lodge No. 64, Knights of Pythias and the deceased members of the Majors Temple No. 516 Pythian Sisters in the Castle hall Monday evening. Turney M. Glick presided over the ceremonies.

The Rev. Charles L. Thomas presented the memorial address. Charles B. Stoffer laid the wreath and flowers on the altar as the names of the 183 deceased knights were read by Mr. Glick.

Following a reading by Miss Ethel Stein the names of the 12 deceased Pythian Sisters were read by Miss Nellie Bolander. Flowers were laid upon the altar in memory of the deceased sisters by Mrs. Ann Lape.

Music was furnished for the services by Dorothy Glick, piano solo; Dale DeLong, trombone solo; and vocal trio, Ralph DeLong, Sylvia Leist and Leona DeLong. Mr. S. L. Warner gave the closing invocation.

Refreshments were served to the membership by the committee for the meeting. R. S. Denman, Charles B. Stoffer and T. M. Glick.

shell came screaming in, and then another. The first bounced off a rock, splattering murderous splinters through the air. One of those—a big one—hit Buckner in the chest. That was at 1:15 p. m.

Col. Clarence B. Wallace, Arlington, Va., commander of the eighth regiment, and his operations officer, Maj. William Chamberlain, Chicago, Ill., got Buckner's body down from the rock.

But the Japanese shells kept pouring in so Wallace and Chamberlain had to call the general a distance to the rear. They put him behind the shelter of a cliff, while the cry "corpsmen" went up. Someone fetched Lt. (JG) Fred C. Wallace, a Navy medical officer from Oakland, Mass.

Wallace quickly injected blood plasma into the dying general. He worked frantically. But it was too late. At 1:25 p. m.—10 minutes after he had been hit—Buckner was pronounced dead.

First Killed in Action

Thus, just a month before his 59th birthday, Buckner became the first American army commander to die in action. He was the second three-star general killed in action. Lt. Gen. Leslie J. McNair was killed on the Normandy front.

Lt. Gen. Millard F. Harmon was reported missing on an inspection flight.

The bloody fighting continued today while Buckner was buried. The Japanese were on the run, and at the front the Marines and doughfaces didn't have time for much beyond a quickly muttered "did ya hear about the old man?"

Farther back, in headquarters, supply dumps, rest areas they swapped stories about him today—like about the time he arrived on the tiny Alaskan island base of Unimak. They gave Buckner an orderly there, a little southern private called "Po Dawg." The general looked him over, and asked what he had done in civilian life.

"I was the best hog-caller in our county, suh," said Po Dawg.

"I'm pretty good myself," said Buckner. "Do your stuff, Po Dawg."

So Buckner and Po Dawg made their best and loudest calls ring up and down the bleak Aleutian hillsides. And nothing could have been better for the morale of the little garrison there, a handful of lonely men who expected a Japanese invasion any day.

Hero in Alaska

And those who knew him in Alaska told about how the "old man" would get up in the morning, go to a creek near his tent, crack the ice, and draw himself a bucketful of water.

The G. I.'s would climb out of their bedding rolls, cold and angry with the Army. But they could always look across and see Buckner, stripped to the waist, standing in front of his tent shaving with the icy water. They weren't quite so angry after that.

That is the kind of a general Buckner was, himself the son of a general in the Confederate army. His father also was editor of the Louisville Courier and governor of Kentucky from 1887 to 1891. In the Buckner family they admired Simon Bolivar, the George Washington of South America, hence the name.

Attended VMI, West Point

Young Buckner followed the southern military tradition and went to Virginia Military Institute for two years before going to West Point, where he was graduated in 1908. During the first World war he applied for aviation duty, only to be told by an examining board that his eyes were not good enough.

"Gentlemen," roared Buckner, "I have been flying for two years."

He was assigned to the aviation section of the signal corps.

Buckner was married in 1916 to the former Adele Blanc, an artist and photographer. They had three children—Lt. Simon Bolivar Buckner III, now in the signal corps; Mary, 18, a former student at the University of Alaska; and William Claiborne, 16, preparing for West Point at the San Rafael military academy.

DRIVER ESCAPES IN WHEN TRAIN HITS TRUCK

An N. and W. train struck the last of two new trucks being transported through Circleville on U. S. Route 23 at 4:15 a. m. Tuesday.

Leslie Wilson, 42, Norwood, Ohio, the driver of the first truck, which was pulling the second by means of a towing bar, was not sure what had happened, according to the police report.

Wilson, the police said, told them he suddenly heard a whistle and bells and then the train struck the rear truck. Police said that he had probably been dozing and did not notice the blinker lights at the railway crossing.

There was very little damage caused to the rear truck. The tail gate and the pick-up body of the truck was damaged. Wilson was not injured.

TWO TRUCKS DAMAGED IN COURT STREET CRASH

Two trucks collided on Court near High street Monday afternoon. George L. Crites, 42, South Court street, and J. W. Jeagers, 39, Columbus drivers of the two trucks, were not injured.

The Jeagers truck, the police reported, hooked the rear of the Crites truck when it was passing it on Court street. The stake body of the Crites' truck was only slightly damaged.

Helps in Mystery

T/5 Gervase Peters, son of the Rev. Walter Peters and Mrs. Peters, wrote on D-Day plus 365, about some of his Army experiences. Jerry has been in service over two years. Two months were spent in France and then his outfit saw its first action along the Rhine river with the 15th Army. Later they moved up to the Elbe river near Hamburg and were with the British 2nd Army while crossing the river. At present Jerry is with the American Ninth Army. T/5 Peters is a radio operator with an artillery observation division. He says that the country of Germany is very beautiful but that the cities he has seen such as Aachen, Jülich, Düsseldorf, and Paderborn have been leveled by Allied bombing and artillery fire. Taking advantage of a three-day pass, Jerry recently visited Paris and saw all the famous places there except Versailles.

Arthur Deal, Jr., left Monday for Cincinnati where he became a member of the Merchant Marine. Art expects to be sent to Brooklyn for training.

ASHVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pettibone of near Ashville announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Lurain, to T/Sgt. Jack Meekin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Meekin of Hartford, Connecticut. The marriage will take place June 23 at Our Lady of Victory Chapel at Lockbourne Army Air Base.

Mrs. Lewis Hay and daughter, Marilyn Louise returned home today. Marilyn Louise was born May 31 in Columbus.

Carl A. Hess of Indianapolis, Indiana and L. L. Weaver of Columbus were business visitors in Ashville Monday.

The Ashville-Lockbourne Lutheran Brotherhood will meet Wednesday at 8:30 in the Lockbourne Church.

James Pickel, S 1/c of the U. S. S. Lardner, a former member of the V. F. W. band, sends greetings to his Ashville friends. He recalls that his nickname for Clyde Brinker was the "man with a hundred ties".

Pvt. Robert Bartholomew is now with the Ninth Army at Hameln, Germany. Bob expects to be assigned to C. B. I.

Richard Toole, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Toole, with over 100 points to his credit expects to be released from the Army soon. He is a veteran of the fighting in North Africa, Sicily, Italy, and the Normandy invasion.

T/S Gervase Peters, son of the Rev. Walter Peters and Mrs. Peters, wrote on D-Day plus 365, about some of his Army experiences. Jerry has been in service over two years. Two months were spent in France and then his outfit saw its first action along the Rhine river with the 15th Army. Later they moved up to the Elbe river near Hamburg and were with the British 2nd Army while crossing the river. At present Jerry is with the American Ninth Army. T/S Peters is a radio operator with an artillery observation division. He says that the country of Germany is very beautiful but that the cities he has seen such as Aachen, Julich, Dusseldorf, and Paderborn have been leveled by Allied bombing and artillery fire. Taking advantage of a three-day pass, Jerry recently visited Paris and saw all the famous places there except Versailles.

Arthur Deal, Jr., left Monday for Cincinnati where he became a member of the Merchant Marine. Art expects to be sent to Brooklyn for training.

With Russ Gregg pitching six-hit ball, Ashville won its first baseball game of the season Sunday when the locals defeated Port Columbus on the loser's diamond 7 to 5.

C. D. Kraft, Charles W. Fortner, Richard Messick, and Edwin Irwin attended Memorial Services at Philo Lodge 64 in Circleville Monday.

WHAT OF THE PRESS?

It was not surprising to intelligent American readers when a committee of journalists, after traveling around the world with open eyes, reported that "many governments are controlling the press politically under the guise of war authority." The Russian government has obviously been exerting almost complete control all along, war or no war, and the same is not only true of most Old World governments, but also of a large part of our own hemisphere. Latin-Americans as a whole probably have less freedom of press than they have had for a long time. In the New World few besides the United States and Canada, among important nations, are really free.

Our freedom in this hemisphere naturally goes along with the freedom of Great Britain in the Old World. It is mainly the Anglo-American nations that have brought freedom to the modern world, and sustain it through these perilous times. We continue to "proclaim freedom throughout the land, and to all the inhabitants thereof." And if it were not for our group of liberty-lovers and tyrant-haters, civilization today would be in a far more perilous plight than it is.

BEAUTIFUL SOUNDS

THE friends in the country have lately heard one of the most beautiful sounds which their neighborhood boasts: the sump pump in operation.

Normally this keeps the cellar from being flooded by the near-by river.

The other day the automatic control broke down, and they had but two resources, to plug in the pump by hand every half hour or so, or bail the flood out in buckets. Either meant no sleep for the household.

After a day the electrician came and fixed it. Now the family is debating which is the more wonderful earful, a steak sizzling on the stove, or the genial roar of the sump pump drying the basement.

REAL FOOD SHORTAGE

PEOPLE who gripe over American shortages and rationing troubles should learn what it is like to have real food problems. In France under the German occupation, according to Alice Leone Moats' new book, "No Passport For Paris," ration coupons were sufficient only for ten meals a month. The rest had to be supplied by buying black market products at enormous prices—or going hungry.

Tales like this make our own difficulties seem small.

"Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers," wrote Tennyson; but you can't tell that to the present graduating classes.

Don't be fooled by smiling Nazis; they're fixing for another war.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 19—The Chinese accounts have been daily describing how they are "fighting their way forward."

This is a nice way of putting it. A more accurate way would relate that the Japs are giving up central and southern China.

This strategic Jap retreat is tremendously important to us. It means they are drawing back their vast numbers for a final stand of the war against our massing power.

My information is they will retire all the way back to the Yangtze river and Shanghai, there to establish an emperor's line, or whatever they choose to call it. South of the line they will hold only the China ports with suicide squads (as Hitler did in France).

Unquestionably they will try to hold Hongkong, Swatow and Amoy and possibly other points—just to prevent us from using these needed bases for Asiatic operations.

This is what General Stilwell knew when he started talking in print the other day about the war lasting two years. He does not apparently expect bombing will bring surrender earlier, or anticipate that business leaders will take over the Tokyo government and seek peace.

In case the Japs fight to the last, we will have to go in and clean them out in China as well as upon the mainland—and there are many who suspect their fight for Manchuria will be bigger than in behalf of their mainland.

Estimates of their troops in North China (including those retreating northward) run as high as 2,000,000 men compared with 1,600,000 on the mainland, although these estimates are not to be depended upon.

The retreat strategy was necessary because of their weak extended position, but it will be a costly business for them. They will lose (abandon is a more precise word for it) the railroad from Hankow down to Hongkong, and therefore all land connection with their 200,000 troops now remaining in Malaya (overestimated generally in public comments to be 345,000.)

They cannot very well supply these by sea under our air and submarine blockade. Hence, the strategy puts their whole South Asia force in a position for suicide, of an aggressive or voluntary nature.

But if you have been looking at their narrow escape corridors in China, and suspecting the Chinese could cut off large bodies of their troops by driving wedges across the Hongkong-Hankow railroad, you must abandon any such hope.

True enough the Chinese are attacking in some spots, but even in those spots the Japs are managing to keep control of the situation by counter-attacks, and in general the Chinese are not strong enough to do anything important.

All the Japs would have to do to stop any Chinese ambitions is to move troops down the railroads from Hankow, where they have plenty of unused reserve power. They can control any area they really want. Chinese aggressiveness, therefore, must be cautiously limited.

The Chinese have drawn some of their troops back from the Burma front for this operation. Our fourteenth air force is getting more planes now, and moving back into their lost bases. However, nothing much can be done until we get power in there, and this will take many months, especially with the ports still in Jap hands.

Disturbances of the Nose Results of Inflammation

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

ALL discharge from the nose results from inflammation. This inflammation may be the result of an infection. However, inflammation of the nose may occur from another cause, that is, sensitivity to dust, pollen, and other substances, which may be breathed into the nose. Germs are always present in the nose, but until the resistance of the tissue cells is reduced by some external or internal cause, the germs will have no ill effect on the tissues.

According to Doctor Arthur G. Wells of England, there are several conditions outside of the nose itself which may be factors in producing continued nasal discharge or chronic running nose in children. Young children and young adults have these disorders more often than do older persons, and boys are affected more often than girls.

Exposure to Cold

Exposure to cold, wet weather, may be a factor in producing nasal inflammation. Doctor Wells also thinks that exposure of the feet to wet and cold may be a common cause for nasal inflammation. The cold probably acts by a disturbance of the mechanism which controls the size of the blood vessels. Wearing too much clothing or too little may also be a factor. Too much clothing, he thinks, may cause the skin to become too sensitive to any exposure, while wearing too little clothing puts a strain on the general vitality.

Doctor Wells also advises against wearing wool clothing next to the skin as it does not absorb moisture easily and when wool clothing has absorbed moisture, it does not get rid of the moisture easily, so that the evaporation of sweat is hindered. He favors a combination of linen and cotton underclothing.

Conditions Within Nose

Of course, there are conditions within the nose itself which may lead to the development of inflammation. These include abnormal bending of the septum in the nose or any other disorder which blocks the drainage.

If a child suffers from a chronic nasal discharge, Doctor Wells suggests that irrigation of the nose may be helpful in some instances; the use of heat lamps also may be of value; a suction pump may be used to cause drainage of the sinuses, which may help; ultraviolet ray treatments, as well as the electrical form of the treatment known as diathermy, may be tried. The use of drops and sprays has not been found of special value in the cases he has treated.

Of course, when a child has a chronic discharge from the nose it is important to have a careful study made to determine, if possible, what is the cause. With removal of the cause, the condition as a rule can be overcome.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. N. N.:—Does catarrh cause the eyelids to become very red?

Answer:—Catarrh of the eyes might occur due to allergy or sensitivity to some pollen or substance with which the person comes in contact.

H. R. S.:—My young daughter has very dry skin. What causes it and what can I do about it?

Answer:—The character of the skin varies in different individuals, depending somewhat on the amount of secretion from the fat glands in the skin. Dryness of the skin may be due to some extent to a lack of thyroid secretion. However, in such instances, symptoms such as coarseness of the hair, lack of energy and excessive gain in weight will be noted. In cases where the skin is naturally dry, there does not seem to be much that can be done outside of applying a bland ointment, such as cold cream, to the skin once a day.

CHAPTER TWENTY

BUT AS the days passed, Terry's confidence in her ability to find the cause of the gauchos' trouble diminished.

She had plenty of contact with the worker families these busy days. This business of overseeing the furnishing of the peon houses was no morning's task. She and Jim were at work early and late on the unending stream of details. And every peon family must be consulted on all matters where there was a choice.

"I want them to feel it's their home," Jim insisted, "not just something the senora thrust upon them."

Terry was happy enough to spend her days riding over the estancia, talking with the peon families. Angela had been a priceless link. Terry could see the girl's shy eagerness in these people.

She liked them and they seemed to know it. She drank innumerable gobs of mate, talked their language with them until she no longer stumbled over idioms. She advised them on their choice of materials, laughed with them, fussed their babies; sometimes she even lunched with them. But, though she often noticed troubled, tempted glances, none of these pampas women ever confided in her.

"It's not at all like the housewives in my country," she complained to Sandy and Brooks one day when she dropped into Brooks' study to report another failure. "Try spending a half day with them and get away without hearing their troubles! You must have a strain of Spartan blood in these parts."

Sandy's eyes wrinkled in a dry chuckle. "Have you tried telling them YOUR troubles?" he suggested.

Terry was startled. "But I haven't any troubles!"

Jim's laugh sounded behind her. "That's the spirit I love," Jim said heartily as she came in. "Even while I keep her running from sunrise to sunset she can still say she has no troubles!"

Terry returned Jim's smile with equal fondness. "This is the most fun I've ever had in my life, I think," she said honestly.

Brooks was examining the blueprints Jim had tossed onto his desk. His slow smile showed how pleased he was with the work. "Raff is doing the kind of work he showed promise of in school but heretofore has always been too lazy to carry out. His interest in the project really is phenomenal!" he enthused.

Jim chuckled. "Oh, not too phenomenal," she murmured, winking at Terry.

Terry grinned. "He hasn't a chance to backslide," she explained. "Whenever he looks on the wily side, Jim or I throw in a couple of darts and he jogs right along again."

Sandy chuckled again. "I can see," he said to Brooks, "the poor laddie hasn't a chance between those two!"

"No, I'm afraid he hasn't," Brooks agreed.

The talk turned then to the plans for the asada. Preparations had been underway in earnest now for the last few days. The servants were almost too excited to work. All they could think about was the immense wooden dance floor Brooks had had built in the courtyard between the house and the stables, the gauchos who would play their guitars, the gauchos who would sing, their own costumes, the beefs and the lambs, the armadillos already picked out for the feast.

"Even Roxie is helping," Jim laughed. "Look!" She moved across to the window and pointed. Sandy, Terry and Brooks followed to look out past the shaded wooden dance floor to a spot near the stables.

Here the baroness' tiny, automatic figure, in tangerine and purple lounging pajamas, was poised at the edge of what was apparently the barbecue pit in process of construction. She gesticulated and shouted down into it, then stepped back satisfied as shovels of dirt came flying up.

"She is overseeing the job!" gaped Brooks.

"Her enthusiasm is boundless," murmured Jim dryly. "We will undoubtedly be able to barbecue every animal on the estancia in that pit."

"I only hope the diggers have a road map," laughed Terry.

Jim frowned at her, puzzled. "Road map?"

Terry laughed harder. "Just another North American phrase," she said. "I mean I hope they'll be able to find their way back up when they're through."

Jim's brow cleared. "Oh, you mean you hope they're hep to straight up."

She regarded Brooks with lofty condescension as he gasped, "Mother, Sacre Dios!" She explained in her most elegant tone to Terry, "He means, 'For the love of Pete!'"

A rumbling noise broke into their laughter. It was Sandy who realized what it must be.

"The trucks—with the lumber," Jim and Terry led the way out through the hall, running in their excitement, and Brooks and Sandy trailed after them. Servants popped out of doors all the way down the hall and joined them all by the time they reached the spot where the first load was to be dumped they had collected a small mob.

Angela, breathless and bright-eyed, plucked at Terry's sleeve.

"The houses?" she whispered.

Terry nodded and, as she looked down at the quivering child, she felt a lump rising in her throat. It meant so much to her—and to a lot more like her! As she glanced up again, she met Jim's eyes. Jim, too, had been looking at Angela, and had been touched by the child's eager joy. The two women smiled at each other, a smile of understanding happiness.

And then the first truck rumbled around the corner of the house and drew up before them. One of the men on it leaped down and began talking to Sandy and Brooks. Other trucks paused, got their orders, and rumbled on down the straight, dusty roads between the pastures toward the various sections of workers' houses.

As the group watched the first truck unload, Terry shared their thrill. This, then, was the real start of their housing project. All the plans, the pictures, the talk had been theory. This fresh, shining timber was the first wonderful fact.

As the pile rose higher and higher, her spirits seemed to soar with it. She turned to see Raff making his way through the crowd. On his face, too, was reflected the importance of this event.

She couldn't resist a chuckle. "You had better watch yourself, big boy," she warned him in mock concern, "or you'll find yourself one of those little senders in the workaday world!"

"The Authority on Authorities"

IT MAY WORK BOTH WAYS

LEARNING and remembering the habits of certain opponents can pay you appreciable profits, if you are ingenious in figuring out how to take advantage of them. That is, if they do not get wise to you and make as effective use of your habits in putting the pressure on you. Most psychological moves in the game can work both ways, and it is up to you to be wary and see that your own tactics do not boomerang back on you.

M. G. Murray, of St. Petersburg, Fla., makes an example of this hand. "I have found it exceedingly profitable," he says, "to watch and study the playing habits of the various opponents. One can learn a lot by noticing what certain strong players will do under certain conditions."

"Knowing my opponent never varied from the book lead of the ♠ from A-Q-J-10, I felt I was on firm ground with my singleton K. So I gladly bid a game in No Trumps. Sure enough, the Q was led, and it was no trouble at all to wrap up nine tricks and go home early. As you know, we never bother with part scores much out here."

Mr. Murray makes no comment at all about how unusual was his first bid of 2-No Trumps. That was a kind of call made with fair frequency by players who have a pretty good bump of deductive ability. Notice that he did not have a single side suit containing what ordinarily is called a "stopper," after his partner's opening 1-Club. But having the top honors himself in that suit, he could be sure North's strength was in the other suits. And, after West bid hearts, Mr. Murray, holding the K, could feel sure North had nothing in that suit, consequently good strength in spades and diamonds.

Veteran's Administrator Job Needs Man Like Gen. Bradley Missouri General Will Find Assignment Real Tough One

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Casting not one single aspersen on the fine achievements of the conquering generals and admirals of the armed forces of the United States, let's settle down for four and a half minutes and talk about a really hard job—the job of Veteran's administrator.

The new administrator, as President Truman announced last week, is to be Gen. Omar Bradley. There is a general who is a general, so my friends in uniform tell me. And a chore that is a chore for the general to do.

To a civilian who hadn't been brooding over the matter, being the Veteran's administrator might have the sound of "just another appointment." Maybe a cushy kind of a role to play. Swishing about on parade days and giving orders to brass hats of lower rank and to grumbling clerks.

On the contrary, I am informed, being Veteran's administrator for the next few years is going to be about a hundred times harder than winning a big battle. There is not a single pleasant feature tacked on to the office except the important one of every office—the satisfaction of getting results.

Getting results in the case of the Veteran's administrator means, almost personally, looking after the health, morale, families and means of livelihood of about 10,000,000 restless, anxious one-time fighters of World War II, World War I, plus the Spanish-American war.

What kind of a fellow is this Omar Bradley, who has been handed this back-breaking task?

The new Veteran's administrator is a modest man, his friends say.

General Bradley

He never tries to dramatize himself. But he has dramatized the infantry. He's a stage manager. Not an actor. He thinks in terms of the men in his command. Not of the wonderful success he will make for himself. This rare characteristic is one of the many reasons he will make a swell Veteran's friend. He will be in the thick of things in the Veteran's Bureau just as he was in the thick of things in the war. His promise to his troops on V-Day, "I'll see you on the beaches," is regarded as one of the classic remarks of the present war.

He is a good administrator, the records say of Gen. Omar Bradley. He is a student. He has been attending recent congressional hearings on veteran problems. He has the kind of humility which only first-class people possess. He is a "family man." He likes his old friends best and gets upset if they suddenly take to calling him "general" instead of "Omar." He's an outdoor man. Likes to fish and hunt and loves dogs. The Army is his real passion. And he hopes to go back to it some day.

As Veteran's administrator, General Bradley will need these and many more qualities. Whatever he does will be viewed critically by servicemen and civilians. Labor and capital are already in a state about the returning veteran. Is, for example, the mechanic, who has been trained to fill the vacancy left by the fighting man, to be thrown out of work by the returning fighting man who is likely to have forgotten how to be a mechanic when he was fighting overseas?

But the fighting man will say: "You promised to keep my job for me when you sent me off to kill or be killed. Where is that job?"

Answering such questions will be but a small part of the problems awaiting the Veteran's administrator. There will be none of the secrecy with which censorship covers warfare to cloak the activities of the Veteran's administration.

In the conduct of war, headquarters, Army or Navy, may quietly order a change in commands or staff. The public never knows what has happened. But the public will know about all the happenings within the Veteran's administration. Omar Bradley ought to be given heroic encouragement. He didn't want the post. But the president of the United States said, "Carry on, Omar!" Omar, like a good soldier, obeyed. Besides, the president of the United States was just Harry Truman, another Missourian!

WHAT OF THE PRESS?

It was not surprising to intelligent American readers when a committee of journalists, after traveling around the world with open eyes, reported that "many governments are controlling the press politically under the guise of war authority." The Russian government has obviously been exerting almost complete control all along, war or no war, and the same is not only true of most Old World governments, but also of a large part of our own hemisphere. Latin-Americans as a whole probably have less freedom of press than they have had for a long time. In the New World few besides the United States and Canada, among important nations, are really free.

Our freedom in this hemisphere naturally goes along with the freedom of Great Britain in the Old World. It is mainly the Anglo-American nations that have brought freedom to the modern world, and sustain it through these perilous times. We continue to "proclaim freedom throughout the land, and to all the inhabitants thereof." And if it were not for our group of liberty-lovers and tyrant-haters, civilization today would be in a far more perilous plight than it is.

BEAUTIFUL SOUNDS

The friends in the country have lately heard one of the most beautiful sounds which their neighborhood boasts: the sump pump in operation.

Normally this keeps the cellar from being flooded by the near-by river.

The other day the automatic control broke down, and they had but two recourses, to plug in the pump by hand every half hour or so, or bail the flood out in buckets. Either meant no sleep for the household.

After a day the electrician came and fixed it. Now the family is debating which is the more wonderful earful, a steak sizzling on the stove, or the genial roar of the sump pump drying the basement.

REAL FOOD SHORTAGE

PEOPLE who gripe over American shortages and rationing troubles should learn what it is like to have real food problems. In France under the German occupation, according to Alice Leone Moats' new book, "No Passport For Paris," ration coupons were sufficient only for ten meals a month. The rest had to be supplied by buying black market products at enormous prices—or going hungry.

Tales like this make our own difficulties seem small.

"Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers," wrote Tennyson; but you can't tell that to the present graduating classes.

Don't be fooled by smiling Nazis; they're fixing for another war.

Veteran's Administrator Job Needs Man Like Gen. Bradley Missouri General Will Find Assignment Real Tough One

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Casting not one single aspersion on the fine achievements of the conquering generals and admirals of the armed forces of the United States, let's settle down for four and a half minutes and talk about a really hard job—the job of Veteran's administrator.

The new administrator, as President Truman announced last week, is to be Gen. Omar Bradley. There is a general who is a general, so my friends in uniform tell me. And a chore that is a chore for the general to do.

To a civilian who hadn't been brooding over the matter, being the Veteran's administrator might have the sound of "just another appointment." Maybe a cushy kind of a role to play. Swishing about on parade days and giving orders to brass hats of low rank and to grumbling clerks.

On the contrary, I am informed, being Veteran's administrator for the next few years is going to be about a hundred times harder than winning a big battle. There is not a single pleasant feature tucked on to the office except the all-important one of every office—the satisfaction of getting results.

Getting results in the case of the Veteran's administrator means, almost personally, looking after the health, morale, families and needs of livelihood of about 10,000,000 restless, anxious one-time fighters of World War II, World War I, plus the Spanish-American war.

What kind of a fellow is this Omar Bradley, who has been handed this back-breaking task?

The new Veteran's administrator is a modest man, his friends say.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 19—The Chinese accounts have been daily describing how they are "fighting their way forward."

This is a nice way of putting it. A more accurate way would relate that the Japs are giving up central and southern China.

This strategic Jap retreat is tremendously important to us. It means they are drawing back their vast numbers for a final stand of the war against our massing power.

My information is they will retire all the way back to the Yangtze river and Shanghai, there to establish an emperor's line, or whatever they choose to call it. South of the line they will hold only the China ports with suicide squads (as Hitler did in France).

Unquestionably they will try to hold Hongkong, Swatow and Amoy and possibly other points—just to prevent us from using these needed bases for Asiatic operations.

This is what General Stilwell knew when he started talking in print the other day about the war lasting two years. He does not apparently expect bombing will bring surrender earlier, or anticipate that business leaders will take over the Tokyo government and seek peace.

In case the Japs fight to the last, we will have to go in and clean them out in China as well as upon the mainland—and there are many who suspect their fight for Manchuria will be bigger than in behalf of their mainland.

Estimates of their troops in North China (including those retreating northward) run as high as 2,000,000 men compared with 1,600,000 on the mainland, although these estimates are not to be depended upon.

The retreat strategy was necessary because of their weak extended position, but it will be a costly business for them. They will lose (abandon is a more precise word for it) the railroad from Hankow down to Hongkong, and therefore all land connection with their 200,000 troops now remaining in Malaya (overestimated generally in public comments to be 345,000.) They cannot very well supply these by sea under our air and submarine blockade. Hence, the strategy puts their whole South Asia force in a position for suicide, of an aggressive or voluntary nature.

But if you have been looking at their narrow escape corridors in China, and suspecting the Chinese could cut off large bodies of their troops by driving wedges across the Hongkong-Hankow railroad, you must abandon any such hope.

True enough the Chinese are attacking in some spots, but even in those spots the Japs are managing to keep control of the situation by counter-attacks, and in general the Chinese are not strong enough to do anything important.

All the Japs would have to do to stop any Chinese ambitions is to move troops down the railroads from Hankow, where they have plenty of unused reserve power. They can control any area they really want. Chinese aggressiveness, therefore, must be cautiously limited.

The Chinese have drawn some of their troops back from the Burma front for this operation. Our fourteenth air force is getting more planes now, and moving back into their lost bases. However, nothing much can be done until we get power in there, and this will take many months, especially with the ports still in Jap hands.

Disturbances of the Nose Results of Inflammation

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

ALL discharge from the nose results from inflammation. This inflammation may be the result of an infection. However, inflammation of the nose may occur from another cause, that is, sensitivity to dust, pollen, and other substances which may be breathed into the nose. Germs are always present in the nose, but until the resistance of the tissue cells is reduced by some external or internal cause, the germs will have no ill effect on the tissues.

According to Doctor Arthur G. Wells of England, there are several conditions outside of the nose itself which may be factors in producing continued nasal discharge or chronic running nose in children. Young children and young adults have these disorders more often than do older persons, and boys are affected more often than girls.

Exposure to Cold

Exposure to cold, wet weather, may be a factor in producing nasal inflammation. Doctor Wells also thinks that exposure of the feet to wet and cold may be a common cause for nasal inflammation. The cold probably acts by a disturbance of the mechanism which controls the size of the blood vessels. Wearing too much clothing or too little may also be a factor. Too much clothing, he thinks, may cause the skin to become too sensitive to any exposure, while wearing too little clothing puts a strain on the general vitality.

Doctor Wells also advises against wearing wool clothing next to the skin as it does not absorb moisture easily and when wool clothing has absorbed moisture, it does not get rid of the moisture easily, so that the evaporation of sweat is hindered. He favors a combination of linen and cotton underclothing.

Conditions Within Nose

Of course, there are conditions within the nose itself which may lead to the development of inflammation. These include abnormal bending of the septum in the nose or any other disorder which blocks the drainage.

If a child suffers from a chronic nasal discharge, Doctor Wells suggests that irrigation of the nose may be helpful in some instances; the use of heat lamps also may be of value; a suction pump may be used to cause drainage of the sinuses, which may help; ultraviolet ray treatments, as well as the electrical form of the treatment known as diathermy, may be tried. The use of drops and sprays has not been found of special value in the cases he has treated.

Of course, when a child has a chronic discharge from the nose it is important to have a careful study made to determine, if possible, what is the cause. With removal of the cause, the condition as a rule can be overcome.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. N. N.:—Does catarrh cause the eyelids to become very red?

Answer:—Catarrh of the eyes might occur due to allergy or sensitivity to some pollen or substance with which the person comes in contact.

H. R. S.:—My young daughter has very dry skin. What causes it and what can I do about it?

Answer:—The character of the skin varies in different individuals, depending somewhat on the amount of secretion from the fat glands in the skin. Dryness of the skin may be due to some extent to a lack of thyroid secretion. However, in such instances, symptoms such as coarseness of the hair, lack of energy and excessive gain in weight will be noted. In cases where the skin is naturally dry, there does not seem to be much that can be done outside of applying a bland ointment, such as cold cream, to the skin once a day.

CHAPTER TWENTY

BUT AS the days passed, Terry's confidence in her ability to find the cause of the gauchos' trouble diminished.

She had plenty of contact with the worker families these busy days. This business of overseeing the furnishing of the peon houses was no morning's task. She and Jim were at work early and late on the unending stream of details. And every peon family must be consulted on all matters where there was a choice.

"I want them to feel it's their home," Jim insisted, "not just something the senora thrust upon them."

Terry was happy enough to spend her days riding over the estancia, talking with the peon families. Angela had been a priceless link. Terry could see the girl's shy eagerness in these people.

She liked them and they seemed to like her. She drank innumerable gobs of mate, talked their language with them until she no longer stumbled over idioms. She advised them on their choice of materials, laughed with them, jounced their babies; sometimes she even lunched with them. But, though she often noticed troubled, tempted glances, none of these pampas women ever confided in her.

"It's not at all like the housewives in my country," she complained to Sandy and Brooks one day when she dropped into Brooks' study to report another failure. "Try spending a half day with them and get away without hearing their troubles! You must have a strain of Spartan blood in these parts."

Sandy's eyes wrinkled in a dry chuckle. "Have you tried telling them YOUR troubles?" he suggested.

Terry was startled. "But I haven't any troubles!" Jim's laugh sounded behind her. "That's the spirit I love," Jim said heartily as she came in. "Even while I keep her running from sunrise to sunset she can still say she has no troubles!"

Terry returned Jim's smile with equal fondness. "This is the most fun I've ever had in my life, I think," she said honestly.

Brooks was examining the blueprints Jim had tossed onto his desk. His slow smile showed how pleased he was with the work. "Raff is doing the kind of work he showed promise of in school but heretofore has always been too lazy to carry out. His interest in the project really is phenomenal!" he enthused.

Jim chuckled. "Oh, not too phenomenal," she murmured, winking at Terry.

Terry grinned. "He hasn't a chance to backslide," she explained. "Whenever he looks on the willy side, Jim or I throw in a couple of darts and he jogs right along again."

Sandy chuckled again. "I can see," he said to Brooks, "the poor laddie hasn't a chance between those two!"

"No, I'm afraid he hasn't," Brooks agreed.

The talk turned then to the plans for the asada. Preparations had been underway in earnest now for the last few days. The servants were almost too excited to work. All they could think about was the immense wooden dance floor Brooks had had built in the courtyard between the house and the stables, the gauchos who would play their guitars, the gauchos who would sing, their own costumes, the beefs and the lamb, the armadillos already picked out for the feast.

"Even Roxie is helping," Jim laughed. "Look!" She moved across to the window and pointed. Sandy, Terry and Brooks followed to look out past the shaded wooden dance floor to a spot near the stables.

Here the barones's tiny, automatic figure, in tangerine and purple lounging pajamas, was poised at the edge of what was apparently the barbecue pit in process of construction. She gesticulated and barked satisfied as shovels of dirt came flying up.

"She is overseeing the job!" gasped Brooks.

"Her enthusiasm is boundless," murmured Jim dryly. "We will undoubtedly be able to barbecue every animal on the estancia in that pit."

"I only hope the diggers have a road map," laughed Terry.

Jim frowned at her, puzzled. "Road map?"

Terry laughed harder. "Just another Norte American phrase," she said. "I mean I hope they'll be able to find their way back up when they're through."

Jim's brow cleared. "Oh, you mean you hope they're hep to straight-up."

She regarded Brooks with lofty condescension as he gasped. "Mother! Sacre Dios!" She explained in her most elegant tone to Terry. "He means, 'For the love of Pete!'"

A rumbling noise broke into their laughter. It was Sandy who realized what it must be.

"The trucks—with the lumber," Jim and Terry led the way out through the hall, running in their excitement, and Brooks and Sandy trailed after them. Servants popped out of doors all the way down the hall and joined them till by the time they reached the spot where the first load was to be dumped they had collected a small mob.

Angela, breathless and bright-eyed, plucked at Terry's sleeve.

"The houses?" she whispered.

Terry nodded and, as she looked down at the quivering child, she felt a lump rising in her throat. It meant so much to her—and to a lot more like her! As she glanced up again she met Jim's eyes. Jim, too, had been looking at Angela, and had been touched by the child's eager joy. The two women smiled at each other, a smile of understanding happiness.

And then the first truck rumbled around the corner of the house and drew up before them. One of the men it leaped down and began talking to Terry's sleeve.

Other trucks paused, got their orders, and rumbled on down the straight, dusty roads between the pastures toward the various sections of workers' houses.

As the group watched the first truck unloaded, Terry shared their thrill. This, then, was the real start of their housing project. All the plans, the pictures, the talk had been theory. This fresh, shining timber was the first wonderful fact. As the pile rose higher and higher, her spirits seemed to soar with it. She turned to see Raff making his way through the crowd. On his face, too, was reflected the importance of this event.

She couldn't resist a chuckle. "You had better watch yourself, big boy," she warned him in mock concern, "or you'll find yourself one of those solid senders in the workaday world!"

IT MAY WORK BOTH WAYS

LEARNING and remembering the habits of certain opponents can pay you appreciable profits, if you are ingenious in figuring out how to take advantage of them. That is, if they do not get wise to you and make as effective use of your habits in putting the pressure on you. Most psychological moves in the game can work both ways, and it is up to you to be wary and see that your own tactics do not boomerang back on you.

M. G. Murray, of St. Petersburg, Fla., makes an example of this hand. "I have found it exceedingly profitable," he says, "to watch and study the playing habits of the various opponents. One can learn a lot by noticing what certain strong players will do under certain conditions."

"Knowing my opponent never varied from the book lead of the ♠ from A-Q-J-10, I felt I was on firm ground with my singleton K. So I gaily bid a game in No Trumps. Sure enough, the ♠ was led, and it was no trouble at all to wrap up nine tricks and go home early. As you know, we never bother with part scores much out here."

Mr. Murray makes no comment at all about how unusual was his first bid of 2-No Trumps. That was a kind of call made with fair frequency by players who have a pretty good bump of deductive ability. Notice that he did not have a single side suit containing what ordinarily is called a "stopper," after his partner's opening 1-Club. But having the top honors himself in that suit, he could be sure North's strength was in the other suits. And, after West bid hearts, Mr. Murray, holding the K, could feel sure North had nothing in that suit, consequently good strength in spades and diamonds.

MAN HAD BRICK IN HIS STOMACH FOR 10 YEARS

One man recently stated that for 10 years he felt like he had a brick in his stomach. This feeling was due to the lump of undigested food he always had inside of him. He was weak, worn out, headachy, swollen with gas and terribly constipated. Recently he started taking ERB-HELP and says the feeling like a brick in his stomach disappeared the second day. Bowels are regular now, gas and headaches are gone and he feels like a new man.

Capt. and Mrs. Gayle C. Wolf, Great Falls, Mont., arrived Saturday for a visit with their parents Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Wolfe, North Court street and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Denman, Northridge road.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Ankrom, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Davis, Mrs. Lettie Lemley, and Marilyn and Nancy Ankrom, of Circleville, were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Goodman, Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. David P. Mowry and daughter, Lynn, of Dayton, returned home Monday after passing a few days with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Robinson of Circleville township.

SHORTAGE OF COCA-COLA WILL HIT CITY SOON

Circleville residents soon will begin to get less Coca-Cola, Joseph E. Brink, manager of the local Coca-Cola Bottling works announced Tuesday.

An equitable system of rationing the popular drink will be maintained in Circleville during the shortage, Mr. Brink said.

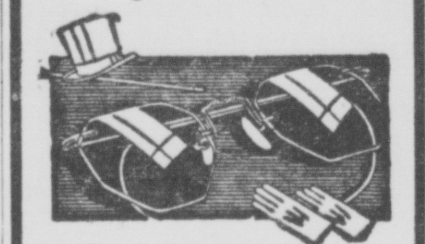

The OPA has announced that the allotment of sugar to industrial users would be cut to 50 percent of the sugar used in the third quarter of 1941, effective July 1. "Sugar is absolutely necessary in the manufacture of Coca-Cola. We cannot and will not use sweetening substitutes, and therefore when sugar is short there must be a shortage of Coca-Cola but the quality of Coca-Cola will remain unchanged," Mr. Brink declared.

Brazilian Program, Tea Given By Scout Troop 8

Scout Affair Given Monday Evening At Headquarters

"A Picture of Brazil," given by Opal Kirby opened the Brazilian program given by Troop 8 of the Girl Scouts Monday evening at the headquarters. Each member was dressed in a Brazilian costume and the theme was carried through in the decorations for the program and the tea which followed.

The program consisted of two songs, "Morena" and "The Chamarrita" by the entire troop. "How the Beetles Got Their Gorgeous Coats" by Pat Quincel, "Vira" a Portuguese folk dance was given by Jean Hall, Pat Metzgar, Bonnie Hill and Jacqueline Eitel. This was followed by the Brazilian National Anthem sung by the entire group.

Mrs. Vaden Couch accompanied on the piano and Mrs. Walter Heine, assisted by Lannie Given, directed the dancing. After the program Miss Ruth Stout gave a talk.

Mrs. William Radcliff, who is the leader of Troop 8, welcomed the guests and explained the troop study to the group. Rosali Bartholomew had charge of the program and announced and explained each part.

Yellow flowers flanked by yellow tapers centered the table at which tea was served by Mrs. Barton Deming, Mrs. Guy Pettit, and Mrs. Charles Boggs.

Mr. Robert C. Trump, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Trump, Route 3, Circleville, was honored at a surprise testimonial dinner given by the Ohio Epsilon Chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity at the Hotel Sinton, Cincinnati, on June 6.

The dinner was given in recognition of his outstanding services as treasurer of the chapter for the last several years.

Mr. Trump, who received his bachelor of science degree in 1944 and his industrial management degree in 1945 from the University of Cincinnati, plans to continue his studies in law at the University of Michigan this summer. He was graduated from Circleville high school in 1938.

Sigma Phi Gamma Plans Card Party

A benefit card party is being planned by the members of the Violet club of the Sigma Phi Gamma International sorority to take place Thursday evening, 8 p. m. at St. Joseph's recreation center.

Committees were appointed at the last meeting and plans were made for the event. Mrs. Rosemary Goodchild will head the welcoming committee, assisted by Miss Barbara Caskey, Miss Audrey Turner and Mrs. Martin Winkle. The refreshment committee will be in charge of Mrs. Frank Geib and her assistants include Miss Betty Clifton and Mrs. Edith Glick.

In charge of the ticket sales is Mrs. Leland Siegfried, with Miss Regina Thornton assisting. Mrs. Glick has charge of the advertising and Mrs. James Groce the table supplies.

Members of the Violet club are making plans for the formal initiation of the club in September. They will then officially become a chapter of the sorority.

W. C. T. U. Has Meeting
Mrs. Ethel Furniss was in charge of the June meeting of the Five Points Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Devotions were conducted by Mrs. Madge Grabille and Mrs. Bertha Porter and Mrs. Ernestine Dudson gave readings.

Refreshments were served to the 14 members and three guests present. The July meeting will take place at the home of Marie Dick.

Annual Party Planned
Annual guest day and birthday party will be celebrated by the members of the Colonel William Ball chapter of the National Society Daughters of the American Colonists, Saturday, June 23.

The meeting will take place at "Ye Old Williams Farm", Route 23, the home of Mrs. Homer Peters. Mrs. G. A. Anderegg will be the assisting hostess.

Mrs. Robert H. Trimble will give a tribute to Colonel William Ball.

In Memoriam

PERRY L. PRINDLE
Of the sturdy, industrious and honest pioneer stock of Scioto Twp., Pickaway County, Ohio, there was born a little over 86 years ago in the home of David Henry and Elizabeth Goehner Prindle their second child, a son, the subject of this sketch, whom they named Perry L. Three other boys and two girls shared with him the parental hearth as this family took its place among the respected, honored and dependable homes which make not only the community and township but in turn the state and nation.

As soon as old enough, Perry laid his hand to the axe and to the plow and in 1881 married Sophrona Holt and established a home of his own. Three children came to bless this union, of whom Mrs. T. M. Fausnaugh of Scioto Township and Mrs. A. A. Greene of Columbus still survive. The family circle was broken in 1906 by the death of the wife and mother. Mr. Prindle married again in 1909, this time making Abigail, his mistress of the home. This wedlock was blessed by the birth of two girls who later became Mrs. T. M. Hoover, lately deceased, and Mrs. Margaret Adkins with whom the subject made his last home. His second wife passed to the great beyond in 1930.

Perry Prindle was one of those who seldom get their names in print but who by their honesty, virtue and charity do much to bring life into the hearts and good graces of their neighbors and acquaintances. He joined the United Brethren Church at Robtown in early youth. Later in life, he united with the Primitive Methodist Church by experience and baptism. Afterwards moving his membership to the Turkey Run Church in church duties and zealous for the things of the Master's kingdom. Besides, he was a most ardent and devoted member of the church.

Daughters already mentioned, he leaves one brother, Elmer, of near Darbyville, sixteen grand-children, ten great-grandchildren, one great-great-grandchild, many nieces and nephews with whom friends, neighbors and the church join in sorrow for our loss which is his gain. Dearest, your loss is our loss. We have gone beyond recall. To the land of flowers and sunshine, where no sorrow can befall.

We shall miss you, sorely miss you. While on earth we still remain, Till the time that we shall greet you. When earth's loss is heaven's gain.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express most sincere appreciation to all those who in any way have assisted during the illness and death of our dear father, Mr. Perry L. Prindle. We are especially grateful to those who provided the floral expressions of sympathy, to all we are most grateful.

Mrs. Margaret Adkins
Mrs. T. M. Fausnaugh

Many Pickaway County Farms To Be Electrified

REA ANNOUNCES PLAN FOR POWER LINE EXTENSION

New Lines Being Constructed
At Rate Of Two Miles
A Day In This Area

Electricity will be in at least 90 percent of the farms of Pickaway county when the South-Central Rural Electric Cooperative extends the rural power lines in the county, REA officials said Tuesday. The line extension program is scheduled to start within the next month.

Short extension will be made to power lines all over the county. The total amount of power line extension will be approximately 150 miles. It will take care of almost every farm that has applied for electric power in the county, REA officials said. A few, more out of the way, farms will still be without electric power but they will constitute less than ten percent of the county's farms.

The power line extension program in Pickaway county is part of the REA's expansion program involving the expenditure of $850,000 and the construction of 1,000 miles of power lines to bring service to an additional 2,000 farms in the area served by the South-Central Rural Electric Cooperative, C. R. Breckenridge, REA Utilization Agent, announced Tuesday.

Rural extensions are being built to serve farmers on an areawide basis, that is, to render service to those farms in sparsely populated areas on the same terms and conditions as are enjoyed by those farmers living in more densely populated sections.

Prior to the formation of REA-financed cooperatives, less than 10 percent of the farms in the United States were electrified. The majority of the farms which did have service at that time were farms which were located between towns or in extremely densely populated areas. After the inception of the rural electric cooperatives electric service was brought to an additional 37 percent of the farms in the country so that today half of the farms in the United States are enjoying electricity.

Due to war time restrictions the expansion of electric service by both private utilities and rural electric cooperatives was practically stopped for almost three years. Restrictions on the construction of rural lines have been practically removed by the WPB and the construction program of the South-Central Rural Electric Cooperative is now in full swing.

The Rural Electrification Administration was created by Congress in 1935 and 1936 for the sole purpose of lending money to expand rural electrification. It has proved to be one of the most popular things for which the Federal Government has loaned money and has won the support of almost everyone. Substantial prepayments on principal and interest have been made by most cooperatives.

Darwin Kinder, manager of the local cooperative, stated that in order to completely electrify the remaining areas in Fairfield, Perry, Hocking, Vinton, Pickaway and adjacent counties it would be necessary to have the complete co-operation of all farmers who are now without electric service. Line is being constructed at the present time at the rate of approximately two miles per day and this construction will be stepped up substantially in the near future.

CALF WITH TWO HEADS BORN ON PICKAWAY FARM

A two-headed calf was born on the farm of Harry Sohn, Pickaway township, last Sunday. The heifer-calf was alive at the beginning of its birth but during the exceedingly long time that was required for its birth it died.

The calf had two distinct and separate heads with four eyes, two ears and one throat. The calf's mother's name was Edgell Farm's Victory.

Dr. J. P. Gardner, Kingston veterinarian, delivered the two-headed calf. Mr. Sohn said that he intended to give the calf's head to the veterinary school of Ohio State University. It is at present being kept at the Circleville cold storage locker.

TRUMAN URGES MOTORISTS TO CARE FOR CARS

WASHINGTON, June 19—Motorists who will receive additional gasoline rations this week are urged by President Truman to keep their cars in good condition and drive carefully.

"A" card holders will get an extra gallon of gasoline a week beginning next Friday. "B" card holders have been eligible to receive additional allotments if they can prove need since last Tuesday. The President said more gasoline meant increased traffic and accidents. He urged law enforcement officers to continue and increase their efforts and said he was confident "our people will give their full cooperation and support."

NOTICE

The supply of Coca-Cola in Circleville definitely will be affected by the further curtailment in the supply of sugar after July 1st because the manufacturer of that popular drink will not compromise with the use of substitutes.

However, an equitable system of rationing will be maintained in Circleville during the shortage.

The O. P. A. announced today that the allotment of sugar to industrial users would be cut to 50% of the sugar used in the Third Quarter of 1941, effective July 1st.

We are informed that this sugar shortage is world-wide and not merely national and is directly attributed to the confusion in the production and distribution of sugar occasioned by the war.

Sugar is absolutely necessary in the manufacture of Coca-Cola. We cannot and will not use sweetening substitutes, and therefore will not compromise with the integrity of Coca-Cola. Therefore when sugar is short, there must be a shortage in the amount of Coca-Cola, but you can be certain that the quality of Coca-Cola will remain unchanged. Our company is committed to play fair with our Government and obey its regulations in both letter and spirit; to maintain the quality of our drink and to maintain an equitable distribution system to serve all our customers equally and that we will do.

We still have a war to win and that comes first, but we will attempt still to get you all of the Coca-Cola that is possible and what we have will be available to all. I only ask that if your dealer does not have Coca-Cola available on the day you seek it, ask him another day because we will keep our distribution up on regular basis although the supply will be curtailed.

Many Pickaway County Farms To Be Electrified

REA ANNOUNCES PLAN FOR POWER LINE EXTENSION

New Lines Being Constructed At Rate Of Two Miles A Day In This Area

Electricity will be in at least 90 percent of the farms of Pickaway county when the South-Central Rural Electric Cooperative extends the rural power lines in the county, REA officials said Tuesday. The line extension program is scheduled to start within the next month.

Short extension will be made to power lines all over the county. The total amount of power line extension will be approximately 150 miles. It will take care of almost every farm that has applied for electric power in the county, REA officials said. A few, more out of the way, farms will still be without electric power but they will constitute less than ten percent of the county's farms.

The power line extension program in Pickaway county is part of the REA's expansion program involving the expenditure of $850,000 and the construction of 1,000 miles of power lines to bring service to an additional 2,000 farms in the area served by the South-Central Rural Electric Cooperative, C. R. Breckenridge, REA Utilization Agent, announced Tuesday.

Rural extensions are being built to serve farmers on an areawide basis, that is, to render service to those farms in sparsely populated areas on the same terms and conditions as are enjoyed by those farmers living in more densely populated sections.

Prior to the formation of REA-financed cooperatives, less than 10 percent of the farms in the United States were electrified. The majority of the farms which did have service at that time were farms which were located between towns or in extremely densely populated areas. After the inception of the rural electric cooperatives electric service was brought to an additional 37 percent of the farms in the country so that today half of the farms in the United States are enjoying electricity.

Due to war time restrictions the expansion of electric service by both private utilities and rural electric cooperatives was practically stopped for almost three years. Restrictions on the construction of rural lines have been practically removed by the WPB and the construction program of the South-Central Rural Electric Cooperative is now in full swing.

The Rural Electrification Administration was created by Congress in 1935 and 1936 for the sole purpose of lending money to expand rural electrification. It has proved to be one of the most popular things for which the Federal Government has loaned money and has won the support of almost everyone. Substantial prepayments on principal and interest have been made by most cooperatives.

Darwin Kinder, manager of the local cooperative, stated that in order to completely electrify the remaining areas in Fairfield, Perry, Hocking, Vinton, Pickaway and adjacent counties it would be necessary to have the complete cooperation of all farmers who are now without electric service. Line is being constructed at the present time at the rate of approximately two miles per day and this construction will be stepped up substantially in the near future.

F's GRAND OLE OPRY

Old Hickory Singers, noted quartette heard on "Grand Ole Opry" each Saturday night, selected two excellent numbers for their part of the show. Of their best, which gives full leeway for holding the vibrant chords, is that oldie, "Sleep, Kentucky Babe." The other is a song with that free easy Western motif of blue and open spaces, "That Plover of Mine."

IN'S TRIAL DISCUSSED

long-awaited trial of the late Marshal Petain will be a topic for discussion by William F. Buckley Jr. on his Sunday news program.

Shirer was an observer to some of the most important periods in the history of France. He had reported the famous night in 1934 when the Fascists attempted to overthrow the Chamber of Deputies. Since then he has followed closely the careers of the French leaders and was witness to the signing of the armistice on June 22, 1940 that surrendered France to Hitler.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

When Dinah Shore, now vacationing for the summer from her Thursday night radio series, is guest soloist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra on Monday, July 2, at Lewisohn Stadium in New York City the conductor will be another popular microphone figure, Al Goodman, making his concert debut. Goodman, incidentally, has been signed by Fred Allen for the fall when the jester returns to the air.

There's no Summer vacation in sight for Helen Mack, producer of "A Date With Judy" program and of the new "Eulalia" Show. In addition to handling the directorial reins of the two network shows Helen has been signed for two movie roles which will keep her extra busy during the next two months.

Bob Hawk has made a notable change in policy where "Thanks to the Yanks" is concerned. Formerly the Monday program gave a contestant his choice of trying for one, two or three thousand cigar

RADIO NEWS NOTES

When Dinah Shore, now vacationing for the summer from her Thursday night radio series, is guest soloist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra on Monday, July 2, at Lewisohn Stadium in New York City the conductor will be another popular microphone figure, Al Goodman, making his concert debut. Goodman, incidentally, has been signed by Fred Allen for the fall when the jester returns to the air.

There's no Summer vacation in sight for Helen Mack, producer of "A Date With Judy" program and of the new "Beulah" Show. In addition to handling the directorial reins of the two network shows Helen has been signed for two movie roles which will keep her extra busy during the next two months.

Bob Hawk has made a notable change in policy where "Thanks to the Yanks" is concerned. Formerly the Monday program gave a contestant his choice of trying for one, two or three thousand cigar-

ACUFF'S GRAND OLE OPRY

The Old Hickory Singers, not a male quartette heard on "Grand Ole Opry" each Saturday night have selected two excellent numbers for their part of the show. One of their best, which gives them full leeway for holding their long, vibrant chords, is that old favorite, "Sleep, Kentucky Babe." The other is a song with that familiar and easy Western motif of blue skies and open spaces, "That Pioneer Mother of Mine."

Pickaway County Short Of War Bond Goal As Deadline Nears

47 PERCENT OF E BOND GOAL RAISED TO DATE

Sales Through July 5 To Be Counted In Seventh War Loan Campaign

With less than one week to go Pickaway county has still about 53 percent of its Series E Bond quota unsubscribed in the Seventh War Loan Drive, according to the records of Clark Will, Pickaway county War Finance Committee chairman, Friday.

The deadline for all such marketable issues as two and one-quarter, two and one-half, one and one-half and seven-eighths percent bond is Saturday. Sales of these bonds will not be counted in the results of the Seventh War Loan Drive after Saturday, Mr. Will said.

War Bonds in Series E, F, G, and series C tax notes will be counted through July 5. A concentrated effort on the part of everyone push the sales of E bonds over the $405,000 quota.

Series E bond sales as of Friday morning totaled $191,156. The county quota was set at $405,000. Pickaway county has approximately 47 percent of its quota of Series E Bonds sold. Mr. Will said that it would take a concentrated effort on the part of the small War Bond buyers to push these sales over the goal by Thursday.

Success in the other series sales is already assured. Sales in the series of other than E bonds totaled $372,500. The quota for these sales was set at $923,000. The county's large bond buyers have over-subscribed their quota by about $50,000.

BALLOTS FOR SERVICE MEN ARE AVAILABLE

Applications for absentee ballots for war voters may be made by a person in his own behalf up until noon July 31, according to the regulations on voting this year as prescribed by Edward J. Hummel, secretary of state.

Applications for war voter ballots, by a relative, to be mailed to the absent war voter must be made at the Pickaway county board of elections not later than noon July 25.

Soldiers may make out their ballots at any time prior to noon of the day of the primary election. Applications for a soldier ballot must be made to allow sufficient time for the ballot to reach the absent soldier and return not later than noon on the day of the primaries, July 31.

Applications for absent war ballots may be made by a spouse; father; mother; brother; sister; son; daughter; adopting parent; adopted child; step child; uncle; aunt; nephew or niece, or half-brother or sister.

War ballots may be applied for any of the members of the armed forces of the United States; Merchant Marine; American Red Cross; Society of Friends; United Service Organizations or the members of the armed forces of an ally of the United States.

NEW OFFICERS ARE INSTALLED AT ROTARY CLUB

Robert Cochran was installed as president of the Circleville Rotary Club at the regular Thursday luncheon meeting in the Pickaway Arms restaurant.

Other officers installed were: Russell Palm, vice-president; Frank Barnhill, treasurer; Charles Gilmore, secretary. Tom Gilliland and Dudley Carpenter were installed as new directors of the organization for the coming year. Lieut. Donald G. Jackson, Air Corps, Lieut. James Henderson, Field Artillery, and Pvt. David C. Betts were guests of the Rotarians at the annual installation of officers.
